Description:

This database is an index to the passenger lists of ships arriving from foreign ports at the port of New York 1851-1891. In addition, the names found in the index are linked to actual images of the passenger list from the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) microfilm, M237, rolls 95-580.

Information contained in the index includes given name, surname, age, gender, arrival date, port of arrival and ship name. If a place of origin or place of nativity was provided, that information is included in the index as well. Many of these items may be used to search the index in the search template above.

It is important to note that the port of departure listed on these passenger lists is not always the original port of departure for these individuals. A ship could make several voyages throughout the year, making several voyages along the way. Oftentimes the port of departure found on these lists is the most recent port the ship was located at when arriving at the port of New York. Therefore, if your ancestors emigrated to the U.S. from Germany, they may be found on a passenger list coming from Liverpool, England (if, in this case, the ship left from Bremer then continued on to Liverpool, England before arriving in New York).

The microcopies of the passenger lists found at NARA are arranged chronologically by arrival date of vessel. If you do not wish to search this database using the search template, the images may be browsed following the chronological arrangement provided by NARA. To browse the images first select the "Year" in which you wish to search, followed by the "Month", and finally the "Ship Name".

To learn about researching in passenger records consult John P. Colletta's book, They Came In Ships (New York: Ancestry, 1993).
